

Abstract of the Disclosure

A system and method builds a set of information by providing information related to each object of a first type surrounded with a pair of identifiers. Information 5 related to objects of a second type is provided with an embedded identifier. Information received from a server is associated with one or more first objects by locating a pair of identifiers in the information and associating the information with one or more objects corresponding to the 10 pair of identifiers.